Summary and Objectives:

Welcome to the first edition of the course Introduction to U.S. law in Granada, Spain.

This class will introduce students to the United States legal system. The goal of this introductory course is to familiarize them with the core subjects taught in U.S. law schools and to get them thinking like an American lawyer. We hope that by the end of this course attendees understand better the current legal practice and legal culture at work in the United States.

The main lectures of this course include U.S. constitutional law, comparative contracts law, U.S. immigration law, environmental law and policy, U.S. Litigation and Oral advocacy, the Federal court system, the U.S. executive power, foreign investments, international trade law and regional trade agreements.

Class will meet on May 23, 24 and 25, 2017, from 11:00 a.m. to 14:00 p.m. at the Sala de Vistas, School of Law, University of Granada.

Business administration and law students, university professors and lawyers are all welcome to attend.

Looking forward to seeing you all there!
